

SHARE THE TECH

As the COVID-19 crisis brought life to a standstill, students moved online to continue their education that gave a free rein and ample time to explore topics in depth that fascinated them. But for many having no access to digital devices meant losing a school year and a looming end to their education as they would be forced to drop out. An effort to prevent such developments, we started the 'Share the Tech' initiative.

This initiative aims to reach out individuals and organizations to procure unused, old devices such as desktops, laptops, tablets and smart phones for non-profits and students who need it to continue education. The process involves the procuring the devices, repairing them if required, setting them up with relevant applications and anti-virus program, and then distributing them to students and non-profits.

MODE OF OPERATION

- 1 Procurement of unused and old devices
- 2 Repairs and setting up computers with applications and antivirus program
- 3 Devices ready for dispatch
- 4 System is completely ready for dispatch

BENEFICIARIES

VIDHI VAISHNAV has been running a food joint outside Prahladnagar Garden over a decade. She's the bread winner for her family, with which she supports her family and her education. In order to ease her burden post the lockdown, a laptop was gifted to her to continue her education. Vidhi aspires to teach in the future.

VANRAJ SOLANKI is supported by the Sajeewa Foundation to study at the Institute of Hotel Management Ahmedabad. His Mother worked as a cook and father as an autorickshaw driver. Both parents lost their livelihood in the pandemic. Vanraj Solanki received a laptop that would enable him to attend online classes enabling him to continue his education.

CONNECTONEFOUNDATION and BHUPTABHAI have been running a community learning center in Lilapur, 20kms away from Ahmedabad. Due to poor electricity supply in Lilapur, Saurav from ConnectOneFoundation powered 20 homes with solar powered devices and Bhuptabhai, with a laptop gifted under this initiative, managed to conduct sessions that allowed students to continue their education in the Lilapur village.

WHAT OUR DONORS SAY

All the best for a bright future. May there be success at every turn of life and all your dreams come true!

- DR SUNIL CHAND

It was my pleasure to contribute to iA Foundation's initiatives. We all wish the kids to be successful in life and go ahead. You all are doing a very great work, very hard work. It's very good thinking of the kids and encouraging them to be independent. I wish them all a successful life. Thanks again to the iA foundation
